CONCLUSIONS

ENZO BIANCHI

Prior of Bose

The liturgical adaptation of churches is an integral part of the liturgical reform that the ecumenical council Vatican II desired, hence carrying it out is due as a sign of fidelity to the Council. The adaptation of churches cannot be considered as something left to one's discretion nor can it be carried out according to totally subjective criteria. Fidelity to the Council includes a convinced adherence to the aims, the criteria, and the discipline that guide their realization authoritatively.

The adaptation of churches according to the liturgical reform. Pastoral note of the Episcopal Commission for the Liturgy of the Italian Bishops' Conference, 1996.
